

Beazer Homes Introduces New Townhomes At Colonial Forge In Stafford

April 15, 2013

CHANTILLY, Va., April 15, 2013 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ --After successfully selling single family homes in Colonial Forge, Beazer Homes, USA, Inc. (NYSE: BZH), one of the country's top 10 homebuilders, is pleased to introduce its new townhome offerings in the community.

This new section will offer two different townhome designs, ranging from 1,514 to over 2,500 square feet. The homes are well priced, in the $200s, and the first homes are expected to be completed in early summer.

"We're excited to be offering these affordable townhomes at such a great community," said John Reeves, Division President at Beazer Homes. "The exteriors will be the same 'craftsman style' as the single family homes and interiors will have the same quality construction we strive to provide in all of our homes."

Colonial Forge is located in Stafford, Virginia, in one of the most beautiful, historic regions of the country. Colonial and civil war history are woven into nearby Fredericksburg, with battlefield sites, historic storefronts, and presidential homesteads open for touring. Fantastic dining, shopping, and entertainment are just 20 minutes away at Spotsylvania Towne Center and Central Park shopping center. Colonial Forge is right off of I-95, and near the V.R.E. commuter rail, and an international airport. Two hospitals and several major employers are nearby, including Quantico Marine Base, Fort Belvoir, and Prince William and Fairfax counties, and the only Blue Ribbon designated high school in the county is adjacent to the community. Planned community amenities include a pool, clubhouse and playground.
